The world has changed forever.

Governments have expanded their reach over their citizens' lives,
Power is being consolidated by an elite few, and
The world economy has become more volatile and unpredictable.

Meanwhile, the internet, a globalizing world economy, and the emergence of the developing world present opportunities to anyone willing to make simple changes to their life.

Geography is no longer a limitation for those willing to follow Andrew Henderson's 'Five Magic Words' and "Go where you're treated best."

As the world's most sought-after expert on offshore tax planning, second passports, and global citizenship - cited by the BBC, Bloomberg, Elite Daily and more - Andrew has condensed his last ten years of investigative world travel into an unprecedented book to help entrepreneurs and investors keep more of their own money, live where they want, become citizens of the world, and improve their lives and the planet.

Direct. Honest. Experienced. Unapologetic. Practical. Transparent. Even funny. The Nomad Capitalist will show you how to take his "E-K-G" formula to:

ENHANCE your personal lifestyle,
KEEP more of your money, and
GROW your money by living, investing, banking, and doing business overseas.

From foreign companies to offshore accounts and from overseas investments to dual citizenship, you'll find everything you need to know to begin a life of international proportions, storing gold in super-secret vaults, finding love in exotic locations, and improving everything from your health to your tax bill by simply "going where you're treated best."

It is no longer enough to be a digital nomad. Those who want complete freedom from the world's broken systems must become Nomad Capitalists, learning to navigate the world system to reclaim their freedom and rediscover the possibilities of capitalism's greatest promises.

Get the book to see how.

This is a terrible book on every level. Not only is it badly (and self-indulgently) written, its substance is a how-to guide for performing immoral and anti-social global economic activities. It makes the case — without actually telling you how to do it (which might have been marginally useful) — for why you should avoid contributing to the social good by engaging in tax- and bank-jurisdiction shopping to evade both personal and business income, how to acquire extra passports so you can shirk domestic responsibilities, and so on. This is not a lesson in how to achieve cosmopolitan “global citizenship” but rather an argument for taking advantage of globalization in the most selfish, individualistic, literally irresponsible way possible. It could only be written by a person who feels literally no obligation or even kinship with his fellow human beings, let alone national fellows. Henderson has written, in short, a long testament to what a terrible person he is, under the guise that any move which is less than perfectly selfish is “not being smart.”

The libertarian's guide to "avoiding" political conflict, laugh at the cronyism that one would leave behind in his/her home country and focus on living a lifestyle where the government doesn't commit unconstitutional acts. This is a life experience and not conjecture like many works out there. Henderson gives an excellent argument for why this lifestyle can make such a positive influence on one's life even if they themselves are not wealthy. As a generation Z chemistry student, I want to look at the world the way he does and find ways to make the world work for me instead of me work for the world.

Added in reply to another post:

Why should we have to pay taxes?

To pay for politician paychecks? -----In the US they make hundreds of thousands per individual.

To pay for infrastructure? -----Government gets charged too much for services to be paid for by the government due to the massive kickbacks companies dole out; it is not uncommon for the US government to be charged 250% more for the same item that a citizen would pay.

To pay for schools? -----Unionized teachers are the leading cause of kids failing out of school because they are given no incentive to work hard, YOU CAN'T FIRE THEM!! Charter schools are FOR PROFIT. They service poor communities and have allowed students better educational opportunities for a lower cost to the taxpayer.

To pay for hospitals?-----As Henderson says in his book, the hospitals in the United States are horrible. Overpriced and deadly due to malpractice. Why shouldn't we look to Vietnam and Malaysia as examples of what could be.

Look, we should let individuals take care of their own instead of letting the state do it. Between the bureaucrats and the red tape, getting anything done always leaves the taxpayer with a deficit. A $20 trillion deficit.

This book is niched iteration on 4HWW by Tim Ferriss. Andrew Henderson's book is both a why-to and how-to of global living and working.

The reason I couldn't give it 5 stars is because Andrew is a good, not great, writer. The book plods along, and will only be finished by those who are truly dedicated to learning more about this lifestyle. If Andrew had an editor for this book, he/she would have excised all the unnecessary foreign words (at one point he inexplicably creates a phrase "tinfoil chapeaus" which is akin to trying to "make fetch happen") and helped Andrew shape a better narrative that would read less like a textbook and more like the fascinating story that it actually is. Andrew also, unfortunately, seems to avoid dealing with the fact that those with multiple homes ultimately have no home, and that technology doesn't change human nature. We make the best connections with those we live with locally, and we need to live with people for more than 3 months a year to form real relationships, the type that will truly matter in the end.

But those are minor points, ultimately, in relation to the gold mines of information that he provides. His multi-pronged portfolio approach, which encompasses not just investments, but passports and bank accounts, is something that informs not just finances and the way you work, but the way one can choose to live. More choice, more diversification, more fun. All these things are at the heart of what Andrew terms "nomad capitalism" but I think would be better served by calling "location independent living."
